

WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY

INSTITUTE OF GERONTOLOGY

2024 - 2025

Pre-doctoral Training Program

Application Deadline: Tuesday, April 16, 2024

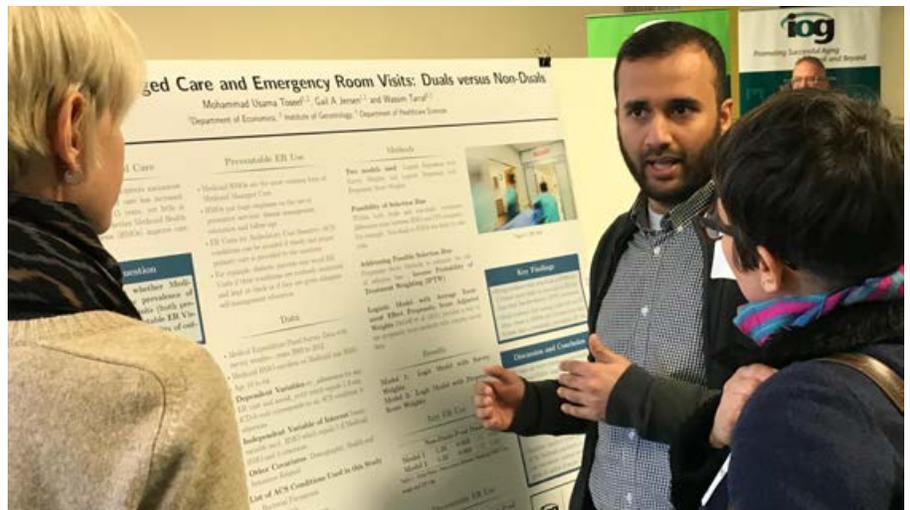

The IOG Pre-Doctoral Training Program expects to have new openings in Fall 2024 for doctoral students at Wayne State University who are committed to excellence in research and a career focused on aging, and who will have their master's degree or equivalent completed by August 2024.

Interdisciplinary Research Environment

•
Trainees are cultivated as junior colleagues working closely with faculty research mentors

•
Apprentice-model focused on research, education, and community outreach

•
Structured professional development opportunities

Our pre-doctoral students study aging and urban health, with a focus on functional independence, health and wellness.

For more information or to apply, email Training Director Dr. Tam Perry at tepperry@wayne.edu

CURRENT & RECENT STUDENT DISCIPLINES INCLUDE

Anthropology, Economics, Social Work, Translational Neuroscience, Psychology, and Communication Sciences and Disorders

Advanced training & preparation for a research career

- Focus on research, publications and national presentations
- Opportunity to interact with nationally known experts
- Broad-based professional development

An award of $1,500 per semester (students are permitted to have other sources of funding with some exceptions)

Up to $800 to participate/present research at the Annual Gerontological Society of America conference

www.iog.wayne.edu

Institute of Gerontology