

Deseret News

Deseret News Powered by YAHOO! >>

- News
- Sports
- Moneywise
- Opinion
- Faith
- Family
- Obituaries
- Classifieds
- Cars
- Jobs
- Deals

MoneyPolitics Work Life Pocketbook Social Security - What should you do? READ »

Intuit GoPayment Take Credit Cards on iPhone/Android Free Card Swiper, No Contract, Easy intuit-gopayment.com

Teaching Certification Online Bachelor's & Master's. Low Tuition - Flexible Degrees. Apply! www.WGU.edu

Dementia Care Home Quality Memory Care in Your Area. Call Today for a Free Consultation. AlzheimersLocator.com

Advertise with us

Report this ad

Some senior citizens more vulnerable to fraud than others, study says

By Lois M. Collins, Deseret News
Published: Tuesday, April 30 2013 3:30 p.m. MDT

Print | Font [+][-] | Leave a comment »

Share 56
 Facebook 40
 Twitter 16
 Pinterest 0
 g+ 1
 in
e
m

A collaborative study by researchers at Wayne State University and the Illinois Institute of Technology shows that psychological challenges like depression make some senior citizens much more vulnerable than others.

Shutterstock
Enlarge photo »

Summary

Wayne State researchers say senior citizens who are psychologically challenged may be especially vulnerable to financial exploitation. That means family members and clinicians who want to protect them need to pay attention.

DETROIT — Scammers have long used telemarketing and door-to-door tactics to push fake home repairs, check scams, identity theft and other frauds on senior citizens. Now a collaborative study by researchers at Wayne State University and the Illinois Institute of Technology shows that psychological challenges like depression make some senior citizens much more vulnerable than others.

Those bent on financial exploitation apparently already know it. But it provides an opportunity for gerontologists and other clinicians, as well as concerned family members, to assess, intervene and perhaps prevent some of the fraud.

Fraud prevalence was three times higher among those who were most depressed and felt less connected and satisfied socially. Feeling lonely, disconnected or ignored made people more likely to respond to the friendliness and "caring" exhibited by scammers. While they are not necessarily targeted more, they respond more, said Peter A. Lichtenberg, professor of psychology and director of Wayne State's Institute of Gerontology,

“The combination of high depression

What You May Have Missed

- Parents feel special bond with libraries and what they offer to children, families
- Organ donation can save lives, but only if a match is available
- Longtime film critic asks, 'Has Hollywood Lost Its Mind?'

Sign up for morning or afternoon updates * >>
Sample morning edition email

Are You Ready to Retire?

- Lifetime Income Planning
- Social Security Strategies
- Retirement Planning
- Health Care Planning
- Investment Management
- Private Wealth Management

Let us help you cross the bridge to retirement.

SMEDLEY FINANCIAL SERVICES, INC.
 420 East South Temple, Suite 420
 Salt Lake City, UT 84111
 (801) 355-8888 • (800) 748-4788
www.SmedleyFinancial.com

Smedley Financial Services, Inc.* is an SEC Registered Investment Advisory Firm. Roger M. Smedley, Sharla J. Jessop, James R. Derrick, Rodney A. Walker, Mikal B. Anne, Shane P. Thomas are Advisory Representatives of Smedley Financial Services, Inc.* and Registered Representatives of Securities America, Inc. Securities offered through Securities America, Inc. Member FINRA/SIPC. Securities America, Inc. and Smedley Financial Services, Inc.* are separate entities.

Advertise with us Report this ad

Most Popular

In Moneywise Across Site

- Home no loan: Should you pay off your...
- Some of the most expensive iPhone apps and...
- Balancing act: Survey says telecommuting...

and low social-status fulfillment was associated with a 226 percent increase in fraud prevalence in this population. This supports our theory that depressive symptoms and lack of social-needs fulfillment have an effect on fraud prediction and serves as a reminder to clinical gerontologists how psychological vulnerability can affect older adults' lives in a variety of ways."

Peter A. Lichtenberg

who led the study.

"There's a real social well-being component to fraud in the research literature," said Lichtenberg. Scammers, even the ones doing quick hits, typically form a bond and then exploit it, he said.

The research is published in the journal Clinical Gerontology. A release said it is the first to include prospective predictors of older adults victimized by financial fraud, as well as the first to look at a population's exploitation in terms of their psychological vulnerability. Lichtenberg said they were not looking at break-ins or robberies, but rather the type of frauds where victims hand over resources or information.

Big bucks

The National Association of Area Agencies on Aging said financial exploitation of older Americans is increasing, a trend likely to grow as Baby Boomers age. Already, it costs senior citizens about $3 billion a year.

The researchers looked at 4,440 participants in a Health and Retirement substudy called the 2008 Leave Behind Questionnaire. They found those who are most depressed are also the most taken by fraud, a wake-up call for professionals to be "aware of their psychologically vulnerable clients' heightened exposure to financial fraud."

They narrowly defined psychological vulnerability for this research, counting only those in the top 10 percent reporting depression and also reporting that they felt they were not treated with respect, but had suffered a loss of social status, compared to others their age in their general circumstance.

"They were isolated, lonely, lacking initiative and pleasure from the depression side and feeling like outsiders socially," Lichtenberg said. The difference in how many fell prey to fraud was "huge" — 14 percent compared to 4 percent of their not-depressed or not socially-isolated peers.

"One of the most significant findings of our study was with the most psychologically vulnerable population," he said. "The combination of high depression and low social-status fulfillment was associated with a 226 percent increase in fraud prevalence in this population. This supports our theory that depressive symptoms and lack of social-needs fulfillment have an effect on fraud prediction and serves as a reminder to clinical gerontologists how psychological vulnerability can affect older adults' lives in a variety of ways."

Those who felt less happy with their financial situation were also more likely to be taken, he noted, lured perhaps by the promise of savings or the chance to make some money.

People with conditions like Alzheimer's disease are also vulnerable, but were not included in this study because they lack capacity to answer the survey, Lichtenberg

Saving moms: Mothers doing better than they...

Consumers will soon be able to switch from a...

The best and worst jobs of 2013

Mom's value in dollars dropped again, annual...

Microsavings are building wealth penny by penny

Get The Deseret News Everywhere

Subscribe

Mobile

Facebook

Twitter

RSS

Email

Most Commented

In Moneywise Across Site

Home no loan: Should you pay off your... 5

Microsavings are building wealth penny... 1

Advertise with us

Report this ad

said.

Previous research

Share 56
 Facebook 40
 Twitter 16
 Pinterest 0
 +1

Comments

DeseretNews.com encourages a civil dialogue among its readers. We welcome your thoughtful comments.

About comments

About the Author

Lois M. Collins

Lois M. Collins is a reporter and columnist for the Deseret News. While she writes primarily on health and family issues for the national and news sections, she also writes a biweekly column and her work appears often in more ..

Connect: Email Facebook Twitter RSS

ADVERTISEMENT

Surprisingly simple solution to help your joints. See why these ingredients are flying off shelves

Detroit : New trick allows Michigan drivers to get auto insurance as low as $9 a week.

Did you know that your record is public? Search anyone instantly! Check anyone in Michigan!

Detroit : Penny stocks could be the secret to being able to afford anything you want...

Have a $500,000 portfolio? Ken Fisher, a 27-year Forbes columnist, has a retirement guide for you!

Advertise with us

Report this ad

Recommended Stories

Oil drilling technology

Technology created an energy revolution over the past decade — just not the one we expected.

7 service members killed

Seven service members were killed in one of the deadliest days for Americans in Afghanistan in recent months

Deter panhandlers

The city of American Fork is fighting back against panhandlers by putting concrete barriers in their way.

Sponsored Results

Facing Criminal Charges?

Superior Legal Representation You Can Trust.
www.tandvlaw.com

Single and Over 50?

Meet Amazing Singles on the Top Senior Dating Network-
www.OurTime.com

Stop Investment Fraud

Don't become a victim. Call today! We protect consumers
www.DDAmerica.com

Advertise with us

Report this ad

Topics	Sports Picks	Work Life	Mormon Times	City Creek
Lists	BYU Cougars	Pocketbook	LDS Church News	Decision 2012
Movies	Utah Utes	Opinion »	Mission Reunions	Education Week
Columnists	Utah State Aggies	Editorials	Faith Wire	Fire Watch
News »	Real Salt Lake	Op-Eds	Family »	LDS General Conference
Utah news	Salt Lake Bees	Letters	Marriage & Parenting	Mormons in America
World & Nation	High school sports	Political Cartoons	Family Media	Olympics
Politics	Rock		Movie Guide	Outdoor Retailer
Business	Harmon		Calendar	Rugby
Education	Live Events		TV Listings	Sports Picks
Salt Lake County	Scores and Stats		Family Life Wire	Sundance Film Festival
Utah County	On TV			Utah Blaze
Davis County	NFL			Utah Grizzlies
Police/Courts	MLB			Voter Guide
Legislature	Weber State Wildcats
Weather	Grizzlies
Immigration	Utah Valley Wolverines
News Wire	Southern Utah University
	Sports Wire

Print Subscription About us Contact us FAQ Feedback Jobs RSS E-Edition Privacy policy Terms of Use Legal notices Advertise with us

Featured Hotels in Norfolk powered by Orbitz.com <small>Advertise with us</small>		BEST WESTERN PLUS ★★★ The BEST WESTERN PLUS Holiday Sands Inn & Suites, More		Norfolk Plaza Hotel ★★★ Newly renovated full service hotel located in the heart of the More
	<small>Report this ad</small>			